The turbulence and uncertainty which have been looming over the country for more than two years now due to the COVID-19 pandemic on the heels of the measles outbreak is unprecedented but the trying times not breezing by Samoa unnoticed by Government.

ENTERS THE 5 YEAR; “The Pathway for the Development of Samoa (PDS)” for the period FY2021/22 to FY2025/26 launched Friday by Government to “empower communities, build resilience, and inspire growth”.

“This document provides the priorities that will shape Samoa’s development for the next five years,” Prime Minister Fiamē Naomi Mataafa assured in her launching address.

“Realization of this commitment will pave the way for the achievement of our longer-term vision of “fostering social harmony, safety, and freedom for all”.

For the 5 year plan to become a reality with Samoa reaping the fruits of its labour, Prime Minister Fiamē says that one of the most vital ingredients to achieve ultimate success “requires wide community engagement.”

“We live in unprecedented times. Over the last two years we have all witnessed a global pandemic; one that continues to affect the lives and livelihoods of our people, as well as Samoa’s economy.

Therefore, we are more committed than ever to empowering our communities so that they can cope with the uncertainties of today’s world and make the most of the opportunities as they arise,” she reiterated.

She “says that under her leadership, “Governments’ ambition is to inspire and instil growth among all our people.” However the Prime Minister noted that the people cannot achieve this alone calling on all stakeholders that “Changing for the better requires wide community engagement.”

“Meaningful collaboration and local ownership are crucial to social harmony and shared prosperity within our communities. It requires strong partnerships amongst all our sector stakeholders, and our development partners. Together, we can forge a pathway towards sustainable growth and resilience.”

The PDS describes five Key Strategic Outcomes:

1. Improved social development,
2. Diversified and sustainable economy,
3. Security and trusted governance,
4. Secured environment and climate change, and
5. Structured public works and infrastructure.

Each Key Strategic Outcome contains a range of Key Priority Areas, commitments and expected outcomes.

Social development sits at the forefront of the new Government’s national efforts and “our Government will forge ahead with measures to build capacities, minimize vulnerabilities, and provide equal access to opportunities,” the Prime Minister reassured and noted that Government’s actions will be guided by a commitment to 5 key priorities.

They include:

S.S.S. on the hunt for new job openings

By Nanai Taofiga Laveitiga Tuietufuga

The first ever woman sailor graduate to be hired by the Mediterranean Shipping Company, (M.S.C.) will soon be heading overseas to join close to 400 of her fellow graduates from the Mulinu'u based Marine School on the M.S.C. payroll, Chief Executive of the Samoa Shipping Services, (S.S.S.) Chief Executive Lautimuia Afoa Vaai has confirmed.

She will be the pioneer flag carrier for Samoa women sailors employed by the M.S.C. while the S.S.S. continues its mission to secure more employment opportunities for Samoan women sailors. And its' not because there are no vacancies or job offers from the M.S.C. but convincing Samoan women sailors to take the employment opportunities available to work with the M.S.C.'s Hotel Department. Instead the Samoan women sailors opt to work on the deck with their brothers from home.

But it's not stopping the S.S.S. management blessed by the Boards' unconditional approval for Lautimuia and team to continue knocking on the M.S.C. doors to secure job opportunities for women sailors from the Samoa.

"We have received positive feedback from M.S.C. and a few other companies," said Lautimuia. And the Shipping Services have started the meticulous planning process taking into consideration the international repatriation requirements due to the COVID-19 border restrictions amongst other issues to ensure that these new job offers "are put to good use."

The Samoa Shipping Services is on the hunt for jobs for these graduates from the Marine School at Mulinu'u.

The hundreds of jobs secured by S.S.S. in recent years noted the Chief Executive reflects the confidence which he has on his management team and staff citing the increase in recruitment numbers in the last 12 month period despite the Border restrictions due to the COVID19.

"M.S.C. is opening her doors for more Samoan sailors including women sailors," says the Chief Executive. "They are receptive to our repeated requests to grant high ranking jobs in the officer's ranks and if pieces of the puzzle fall together, we are highly optimistic that more of our women sailors will be on the company's payroll in the coming weeks," he continued. Presently some 400 Samoa sailors are working with M.S.C. - the majority of 350 are deployed on cruise ships and the rest working on container, cargo and commercial vessels. Their average pay per month per individual is in the neighborhood of US$2,000 or close to $6,000.

And it's estimated that through the Samoan sailor's labor of love, Samoa's foreign reserves is the generous recipient of between $30 to $40 million tala a year not to mention the benefits reap by their families.

Bottled Biomass LPG Cooking gas coming soon

By Nanai Taofiga Laveitiga Tuiletufuga

The IMPRESS Project through the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment (M.N.R.E.) reached a new milestone with the Commissioning of its 5th Biogas location at Papauta Girls College last week.

But that is just icing on the cake, according to Assistant Chief Executive Vaigalepa Toiata Uili in charge of the initiative to produce clean renewable energy sources for the benefit of residents.

In the makings, the Project Administrators are investing in procuring compressors to bottle the Biomass LPG Cooking Gas for circulation.

M.N.R.E.’s Assistant Chief Executive Vaigalepa Toiata Uili “It’s one of the upgrades on our list of targets and priorities,” said Vaigalepa.

“The new LPG Biomass Chapter,” says Vaigalepa articulates the purpose of the IMPRESS Project in alignment to the Ministry and Environment Sector target goals “to improve sustainable and cost-effective utilization of indigenous renewable energy resources for energy production in Samoa especially communities.”

Under the IMPRESS Project, five systems have been launched including two in Savai’i at Sa’asa’ai and Vaisala complemented by three in Upolu at the Methodist Atinae, Faleula, Samoa Trust Estates Corporation Mulifanua and the latest the Papauta Girls College.

In commissioning the new system for the Girls College, Associate Minister Faleomavaega Titimaea Tafua touched on the benefits reap by the selected communities, thanks to the IMPRESS Projective initiatives.

“The newly installed biogas system,” explained Faleomavaega, “will make use of waste from the washroom facilities and latrines, piggery, cattle and food scraps to generate biogas for cooking and lighting purposes and will have multiple benefits for the school such as:

- Improved on-site waste management technology.
- Cost efficient i.e. reducing expenses on LPG gas bottles;

To “empower communities, build resilience, and inspire growth”.

1.Promote a more equitable, sustainable, and peaceful future based on our common values of fairness, respect, inclusivity, and responsibility, both for one another and for our natural resources;

2.Implement policies that are responsive to local needs and opportunities, and which strengthen our nation's resilience;

3.Safeguard the rule of law and uphold human rights and fundamental freedoms;

4.Strengthen and safeguard our legal and governmental institutions, ensuring that they are fit for purpose and accountable to all those who live in Samoa; and

5.Cultivate a diversified economy that is sustainable and resilient to global, national, and local pressures.

These building blocks for the pursuit of long, healthy and fulfilling lives depend on there being a sustainable and diversified economy that promotes shared prosperity for and within our communities.

While outcomes matter, how we choose to pursue those outcomes is equally as important.

We will therefore protect people’s rights, ensure the integrity of governance systems, and secure partnerships that can benefit Samoa.

Environmental conservation and sustainability remain crucial in building resilience, and we will strengthen measures towards climate change mitigation, adaptation, and disaster risk management.

In parallel, we will invest in affordable, resilient, and well-maintained infrastructure, so providing the platform upon which overall sustainable development can be pursued.

In summary, the Government’s actions will be guided by a commitment to:

1. Promote a more equitable, sustainable, and peaceful future based on our common values of fairness, respect, inclusivity, and responsibility, both for one another and for our natural resources;

2. Implement policies that are responsive to local needs and opportunities, and which strengthen our nation's resilience;

3. Safeguard the rule of law and uphold human rights and fundamental freedoms;

In summary, Prime Minister Fiamē is resounding her message with confidence that the Government’s journey towards the achievement of the outcomes stipulated in the plan, will, without a doubt, be met with challenges and moments of uncertainty.

“However, as a people bound by a shared responsibility for development, our collective commitment to the careful navigation of the roadmap that is the “Pathway for the Development of Samoa”, will indeed foster social harmony, freedom, and safety for all,” she concluded.

CSOs begin ground-work in preparation for UPR 2026

PRESS RELEASE

Apia, Friday 25 February 2022 – CSOs begin groundwork in preparation for UPR 2026

The Office of the Ombudsman National Human Rights Institution of Samoa in collaboration with the Office of the High Commissioner of Human Rights Pacific Office in Suva, Fiji (OHCHR Pacific) jointly conducted a follow-up workshop with Civil Society Organisations (CSOs) on the outcome of Samoa’s third Universal Periodic Review (UPR) held on 2 November 2021.

A total of 11 CSOs took part in the workshop all of which participated in the UPR process in 2021 by providing alternative reports. The alternative reports which contained various recommendations from CSOs greatly influenced recommendations issued by UN member states and consolidated in a report by the UPR Working Group (WG). A total of 8 submissions from more than 15 local CSOs.

In March 2022, the WG’s report will be officially adopted by the Human Rights Council. During the formal adoption of the report, an opportunity will be given to the State to respond to the recommendations, as well as to NHRI Samoa and CSOs to make interventions.

The WG’s report contains a total of 145 human rights-related recommendations from UN member states for Samoa to look into implementing. Out of the 145 recommendations, 112 have been supported by Samoa and 33 noted.

Following the adoption of the report, the state will commence its implementation work. CSOs as well as NHRI Samoa have a crucial role to play in monitoring and following up on the progress of the State’s implementation efforts. Feedback from this will help inform Samoa’s next UPR scheduled for 2026.

The monitoring and follow-up work by CSOs will involve CSOs/NGOs taking stock of the recommendations consistent with their recommendations and from this look at ways to continue to lobby the implementation of these recommendations by the State in the next 5 years.

The Ombudsman, Luamanuvao Katalaina Sapolu reiterated in her opening remarks that the effective implementation of the recommendations from UN member states would be difficult and, in many instances, impossible without the involvement of civil societies organizations. Thus, the groundwork set today to 2026 will greatly assist CSOs to monitor and follow up in preparation for 2026 UPR and other upcoming treaty body reporting.

“As Samoa implements the recommendations from UN member states between now and the next UPR in 2026, NHRI Samoa will continue to play its part in the information and experience sharing, consultation, and regular dialogue to ensure that CSOs are given the support to engage with international human rights mechanisms and maximize opportunities to advance shared goals and interests that are advocating, promoting and monitoring human rights” Lumanuvao Katalaina Sapolu, Ombudsman.

Ms. Momoko Nomura of the OHCHR Pacific Regional Office congratulated the CSOs in their participation in the UPR process last year and encouraged them to conduct regular monitoring and follow-up to keep track of the implementation of UPR recommendations, hold the Government to account for the human rights commitments made, encourage implementation, as well as make CSO work more effective.

At the end of the workshop participants were able to identify UPR recommendations that were consistent with the recommendations they made in their alternative reports and with their mandates. CSOs were also able to put together a roadmap that will help guide their monitoring and follow-up work from now to 2026. Finally, CSO was also informed of reporting processes for treaty bodies and how they can contribute especially to the upcoming reviews for Samoa by treaty bodies including CRC, CEDAW, CRPD, and others scheduled for this year.

The Office would like to acknowledge the support and technical assistance of OHCHR Pacific and all CSOs who participated in today’s workshop.

ENDS.

The Prime Minister of Samoa addresses the International Labour Organization Global Forum for a Human-centred Recovery.

PRESS RELEASE

Apia (ILO News) –Samoa’s Prime Minister, Honorable Fiamē Naomi Maata’afa addressed the International Labour Organization Global Forum for a Human-centred Recovery that took place on 22-24 February.

In her virtual address on 24 February, the Prime Minister welcomed the ILO’s Global Call to Action for a Human-Centred Recovery from the COVID19 crisis, that is inclusive, sustainable, and resilient. She said, “it is critical that we commit to pursue a strong and coherent global response in support of Member States’ crisis response and recovery strategies, including through joint initiatives and enhanced institutional arrangements among international and regional organizations.”

Speaking on the climate action, the Prime Minister highlighted Samoa’s commitment towards a ‘Just Transition’ and the need for genuine efforts by all to ensure that the creation of decent employment was at the core of climate action.

Samoa and Pacific Island States are continuing to address the vulnerabilities that exist due to climate change and its impacts on employment in key economic sectors such as agriculture, forestry, fisheries, and tourism.

Samoa, together with other countries of the Blue Pacific Big Ocean states are frontliners of the adverse effects of climate change. However, global agreements and under the auspices of the ILO, has taken considerable measures to manage the impacts of climate change on jobs and workforce.

Honorable Fiamē emphasized that national and international solidarity in the implementation of just transition and reshaping enabling environment incentives and requirements towards carbon pricing and financial regulation, were crucial to realize the vision of minimizing the impacts of climate change on environments, economies and even to their own survival.

The Prime Minister also referred to the Global Accelerator on jobs and social Protection for a Just Transition, launched at the United Nations General Assembly in September 2021 as a demonstration of collective commitment but most importantly it speaks about inclusiveness and enabling the voices of the Pacific to be heard loudly and clearly and to be followed by deliberate actions.

For Samoa and the Blue Pacific Big Ocean States, committing to the Just Transition to carbon and neutral economies also means ensuring greater protection for our workers, improved social protection for our people, and greater inclusion for youth, women, and girls at all levels.

Honorable Fiamē acknowledge the work and support of the ILO, in furthering Samoa and the Pacific’s efforts towards inclusive, full, and productive employment.

She said Samoa will continue to uphold commitments to decent work through improved labour standards built on the foundation of their culture and heritage perpetuating social harmony in the region. And will continue to observe the guidelines of greening the economies for more opportunities to accelerate economic growth and generate decent jobs that will contribute significantly to poverty reduction and social inclusion.

Note to Editors | About the Forum

Honorable Prime Minister addressed the forum on behalf of Samoa and as the Co-chair of the International Advisory Board for Climate Action for Job Initiatives (CA4JI) that was established to support the Paris Agreement on Climate Change adopted in 2015. The Forum was organized as a follow-up to a decision by the International Labour Conference in 2021 for global call to action for human-centred recovery from the Covid-19 crisis that is inclusive sustainable and resilient. In it, Governments, Workers and Employers from ILO’s 187 members states committed to pursue a strong and coherent global response in support of members human-centred recovery strategies that are inclusive, sustainable, and resilient, including through joint initiatives and enhanced institutional arrangements among international and regional organizations.

S.O.P. to select Samoan sailors under siege

By Nanai Taofiga Laveitiga Tuiletufuga

The Samoa Shipping Services, (S.S.S.) will be strengthening their Standard Operating Procedures selection criteria manuals for Samoan sailors applying for jobs to work overseas.

The review is prompted following the sacking of ten seafarers due to infringements to their employment contracts while working in Europe and other parts of the world with the Mediterranean Shipping Company (M.S.C.) Six have been repatriated home and the remaining sailors are expected to arrive next month subject to approval of flights home due to the COVI-19 border restrictions.

Some of the sailor’s employment ended due to minor infringements such as attendance and poor performance while others received the boot for serious contract violations that include, excessive alcohol use and using drugs. The most serious violation involves sexual harassment and misconduct.

And the Shipping Services management and staff who oversees the training and recruitment of sailors to work, mainly on cruise ships, container and cargo vessels are going back to the drawing boards to beef up their Standard Operating Procedures to select seafarers which will not include a Pre-Departure course similar to that in place for Samoa’s Seasonal Workers.

Samoa Shipping Services Chief Executive Lautimuia Afoa Ueese Vaai

Shipping Services Chief Executive Lautimuia Afoa Ueese Vaai told the Savali that the review will complement the Code of Conduct which governs the behavior and conduct and the dos and don’ts for sailors to follow.

“The Code is explicitly explain in detail to each sailor because it’s a mandatory requirement of their employment contract,” added the CEO. However the latest incident has prompted the S.S.S. to improve its selection processes.

There is also a Standing Policy blacklisting sailors sacked from overseas. But Lautimuia says that in some cases the employers have accepted appeals from Samoa taking into account the circumstances and the seriousness of the violations.

“Some of the boys were removed for consistently turning up late or not turning up during their scheduled shifts and other minor shortcomings,” he explained. “The more severe incidents such as assault, drinking on the job, drug use, sexual harassment are unacceptable not only the SSS Board but the employers.”

“We’re also mindful that the majority of these sailors are fresh out of school, new graduates from the Marine School and they are at the vulnerable age from 18 to 25 years old,” continued Lautimuia. “For many, this is their first time abroad leaving the comforts of their home and their families and parents supervision.” An issue of grave concern to Lautimuia and his team is the potential negative impact to secure new jobs for Samoan sailors especially for women sailors and officer’s rank.

“It’s a concern that we are taking into account and we conversations are continuing to talk to the M.S.C., he said calling on the assistance from the industry’s local stakeholders including the Marine School to help with the counseling and mentoring of the sailors.

However, due to repeated misconduct and misbehavior by a few of the sailors, a Pre-departure program is now in the works and will be compulsory for all new sailors recruited to work abroad through the S.S.S.

On the upside, the 29 Samoan sailor’s mostly new recruits who departed for their deployed with the M.S.C. have arrived safely in Milan. They have all tested negative for COVID-19 and will go into quarantine for 7 days before deployment.

Fuel Prices for MARCH 2022

(PRESS RELEASE)
The Minister of Finance, Afioga Mulipola Anarosa Ale Molio'o has advised the following changes in retail petroleum product prices to apply from the 1st March 2022.

The Minister announced the increase in the retail Prices for;

1. Petrol increase by 17.91 sene per litre from $2.93 sene to $3.11 sene
2. Diesel also increase by 22.42 sene per litre from $2.84 sene to $3.07 sene
3. Kerosene will increase by 20.67 sene per litre from $2.46 sene to $2.66. sene.

The wholesale prices for March 2022 are based on January MOPS International Product Prices which increased by US$ 10-12 /bbl. Freight Rates were stable while the US$ weakened marginally against the TALA

Demand for petroleum products is growing faster than production especially from the OPEC + countries (which includes Russia) as the world transitions away from the worst of the pandemic. The Russian military build-up on the Ukraine border raises concerns about the stability of the supply chain which in turn is reflected in higher prices as buyers lock in future supplies.

STATEMENT BY HON. PRIME MINISTER FIAME NAOMI MATAAFA OF SAMOA AT THE ILO GLOBAL FORUM ON HUMAN CENTRED RECOVERY

Ladies and Gentlemen,
Talofa and Warm Pacific Greetings.

We convene this global forum, as we enter the third year of the COVID19 pandemic.

- Challenging and difficult times continue to beset our people and region adding weight to an already onerous climate crisis. Samoa joined a number of our Pacific neighbours impacted by the onslaught of the pandemic whittling to tatters our hard earned gains to keep COVID out of our small island countries. Thankfully for Samoa, we continue to succeed in containment of the virus at our borders.

- We remain vigilant in ensuring that our response prioritizes the protection of lives, while still upholding the rule of law, respecting human rights, providing the necessary public services and minimising the impact of the restrictions on the daily lives of our citizens. A strong public health response is critical and includes getting vaccinated as well as practising public health measures for good hygiene and COVID prevention.

- We remain on track to achieve high vaccination rates for the 12-17 cohort as well as those above 18 years old. The Booster roll out program has begun and we are preparing for administering the paediatric vaccine.

- The support of our development partners and international community have been crucial in our ongoing planning and modeling and response to the pandemic. International cooperation remains key to our ongoing efforts and facilitating response plans.

- While it has not taken lives directly, COVID has introduced a 'new normal' to our way of life. Our already small economies have been hit hardest with the crippling brunt of the pandemic felt in the few growth sectors we depend on

- Employment has fizzled to an all-time low. Social cohesion is under pressure. The social fabric of our society is impacted particularly with the impact of restrictions on communal association and face to face contact. Students are not adapting well to online learning Our people are struggling with living life in isolation and being removed from the humanity of communal living.

- While the safety and well-being of our people remains paramount, we continue to try and adapt and build resilience, while learning new methods of tackling this global emergency throughout all the sectors of our economies and most evidently in the world of work.

- In addition to Stimulus packages, government has also continued awareness programmes in communities on health as well as gender based violence and violence against children aggravated by socioeconomic pressures.

- Despite travel restrictions, the government has supported the continuing operation of labour mobility and seasonal worker schemes of Australia and New Zealand, which saw movement of around 10,000 workers to and from Samoa since the onset of the pandemic. We have become cognizant of the gaps in social protection and the need to address these in a sustainable manner.

- We welcome the ILC's "Global Call to Action for a Human-Centred Recovery from the COVID-19 Crisis that is Inclusive, Sustainable and Resilient." It is critical that we commit to pursue a "strong and coherent global response in support of Member States' crises response and recovery strategies, including through joint initiatives and enhanced institutional arrangements among international and regional organizations."

- This commitment encompasses what Governments should be and are currently implementing in their respective territories. It must also be emphasized and insisted upon by all constituents that the principles of tripartite consultation must be embedded throughout the processes of developing and reviewing strategies for inclusive, sustainable, and resilient recovery.

- Although we have been occupied with tackling the pandemic, the recent COP26 made it abundantly clear that the global threat of climate change remains our greatest challenge. The Glasgow Climate Pact from COP26 recognised for the first time the inclusion of Just Transition, focusing on lowenergy emissions systems and job creation. We continue to encourage this transition as it contributes to ensuring we meet the promise of the Paris Agreement for a 1.5 Degree world. We look forward to all parties providing concrete plans for their net-zero pledges by COP27 and insist that all fossil fuel subsidies – not just "inefficient" subsidies – need to be phased out. This is key to the survival of our nations and peoples Excellencies,

- Our commitment towards a 'Just Transition' and the need for genuine efforts by all to ensure that the creation of decent employment is at the core of climate action. Samoa and Pacific Island States are continuing to address the vulnerabilities that exist due to climate change and its impacts on employment in key economic sectors such as agriculture, forestry, fisheries and tourism.

- As Co-Chair of the Climate Action for Jobs, International Advisory Board, Samoa challenges our global partners to leverage this platform and drive climate action while ensuring livelihoods are safeguarded.

- For this reason, Samoa commends the launching of the Global Accelerator on Jobs and Social Protection for a Just Transition at the General Assembly in September 2021. While the commitment is applauded, we must ensure all voices, including the Blue Pacific's are heard loud and clear followed by focused action. Samoa continues to take a human rights approach to implementing the Sustainable Development Goals and our vision is to foster social harmony, safety and freedom for all. Thus in our COVID recovery and sustainable development efforts, we are pushing for empowerment of our communities, sharing prosperity for all and building resilience, despite the many challenges. Excellencies,

- As the front-liners of climate change impacts, Samoa and the Blue Pacific need all the ambitious climate action pledges and commitments to be implemented. A just transition to carbon neutral economies that ensures greater protection for our workers, improved social protection for our peoples, and greater inclusion of youth, women, and girls at all levels, can play an important role in our global efforts

- In the region we also need to contextualize the concept of just transition and green jobs, in order to capitalize on opportunities. Investment in science and technology, including building the necessary capacity to better benefit from these investments, is important for SIDS like Samoa

- The Dialogue for Pacific Island Countries on Just Transition during the COP 26 already highlighted key areas for interventions including green skills development and integration into formal education, addressing knowledge gaps on climate change, and building resilient infrastructure.

- To enable this, we recognize that financing for SIDS is critical in order to access affordable, renewable energy technologies. Excellencies,

- In closing, we acknowledge the work and support of the ILO, in furthering Samoa and the Pacific's efforts towards inclusive, full and productive employment.

- We continue to uphold our commitments to decent work through improved labour standards built on the foundation of our culture and heritage perpetuating social harmony in our region.

- We will also continue to observe the guidelines of greening the economies for more opportunities to accelerate economic growth and generate decent jobs that will contribute significantly to poverty reduction and social inclusion. I wish you success in your deliberations.
